SPARTACANS CALL STRIKE

GERMAN RADICALS DECLARE GENERAL STRIKE TO OVERTHROW GOVERNMENT.

By the Associated Press
BERLIN, March 4.—The National Spartacus League and Greater Berlin Communist organizations have issued an appeal for an immediate general strike and overthrow of the national assembly and present republic. The organizations instructed their followers to assemble at factories to prevent work and direct them to avoid street demonstrations that the government may have no opportunity to crush the movement by force. According to the newspaper, Vorwaerts a majority of the workmen in metal trades and railways favor a general strike.

SENDING FARMING EXHIBIT TO FRANCE

NEW YORK, March 4.—A $60,000 farming exhibit is being shipped this week to France by the War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association to be used for the instruction of thousands of soldiers in the American Expeditionary Force, who want to return to the farms when their regiments are demobilized. The exhibit was assembled by the United States Department of Agriculture at the request of the War Department.

It includes samples of soil from every county of the United States, dairy utensils, egg testers, cereal and corn samples, insecticides and fungicides, and other material sufficient to fill five cars.

With this material will go to France four government experts to supervise the setting up of the exhibit and to prepare for the work of instruction in France. These experts will remain with the Expeditionary Force four months to teach men assigned from the army so that the work of instruction can continue as long as the American troops are held overseas. A. A. Ormsby, of the Department of Agriculture, is in charge of the exhibit. It is announced that the shipment of this material is the result of a wide-spread demand among the fighting men overseas for instruction in agriculture. Dr. Kenyon L. Butterfield, president of the Massachusetts Agriculture College and member of the Y. M. C. A. Army Education Commission, has estimated that one-fourth of the men in the American Expeditionary Force came from the farms of America and that a similar proportion of them want to return to the farms when their military service is ended.

On its arrival in France, the exhibit will be divided into four parts loaded on trucks and moved from camp to camp for demonstration. The government will pay the salaries of its experts and the Y. M. C. A. will pay their expenses. It is expected that the military authorities will assign several hundred instructors from the army to use this exhibit in agricultural education. It is announced that the Y. M. C. A. sent to France in January more than $700,000 worth of text books part of which bear upon courses of agriculture and that these courses are open to all fighting men of the United States as long as they remain overseas.

Shipment of samples of soil is intended to enable the soldier to discover how best to utilize the farm lands of his home town whether he may come from Maine or Oregon. The Bureau of Plant Industry has contributed exhibits showing how to fight insect pests and fungous diseases of plant life, and the Bureau of Animal Industry has contributed model farm buildings, dairy and poultry barns, and silos. By the use of these and other exhibits, the soldiers will be taught scientific farm management.

The only other features on the opera house program are a short address by Governor Smith and singing of the Star Spangled Banner by Enrico Caruso.

PROCEEDINGS OF OKLA. LEGISLATURE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., March 4.—The senate this afternoon, reconsidering its action of Saturday in fixing April 8 as the time for holding an election on the $50,000,000 bond issue for roads, voted to leave the date blank and authorized the governor to fix the time. All else requisite to calling the special election and preparations for holding the election was completed by the senate, but the chief executive will name the date. Considering conditions that might arise, members of the senate thought it better not to fix a date now. On reconsideration it was the opinion of many that the date named would not be sufficient time.

The bill was passed finally by the senate this afternoon and is now ready for the house. It probably will reach there tomorrow. There is no definite indication of what the house will do with the senate bill. From the fact that on main issues the two measures differ so little there is the belief that conference work will be brief and not difficult.

The house unanimously adopted a resolution by Harrison of the appropriations committee fixing adjournment sine die for March 8 at noon. The resolution was debated only a few minutes. Members say they do not want to stay on the $2 a day pay after the sixty days, and some declare they will go home at that time.

The house adopted the senate amendments to the house bill by which establishing a military school at Claremore. The only one of importance is that eliminating vocational training and making it purely a military school. The bill is now ready for approval.

The house laid on the table a motion by Barry to reconsider the vote by which the committee of the whole on Saturday recommended for passage House Bill 194 by Harper, which provides for the full value policy in fire insurance in case of loss. The bill was placed on final passage, and after being debated for more than an hour, on roll call failed of final passage by a vote of 48 to 41. Harper author of the bill, changed his vote from yes to no in order to move its reconsideration, which he did. The measure probably will be taken up again Tuesday.

The senate today agreed to the house amendments to the workmen's compensation bill and passed it finally. This now completes the bill.

The senate struck from the general deficiency bill calling for $584,000 an item of $48,000 for paving around the capitol grounds, and advanced Senate bill by Snyder carrying an appropriation of $50,000 for a monument to Oklahoma soldiers who were killed or died in the war. A memorial commission of five to be appointed by the governor, is created by the bill.

A resolution introduced in the senate by Thomas would compel all concerns liable for gross production tax to pay on the posted price plus whatever premiums had been received. It was observed that the taxes had been paid only on the posted price of oil, and that in many instances as much as $1.50 and $1.75 a barrel had been paid in premium. The resolution went over for a day.

The house adopted a resolution appropriating $5,000 and authorizing the industrial commission to investigate the case of F. J. Bunnell, who was injured during the construction of the capitol, and is permanently crippled. The commission is authorized to make whatever allowance is justified, not to exceed the amount appropriated.

The house passed finally twenty-eight bills, among which the most important are: Appropriation for the four district agricultural schools at Tishomingo, Lawton, Warner and Goodwell; by Stevenson, curing a defect in the statute relative to escheat of lands to the state; by Webb, making it unlawful for any person to carry or display a flag indicative of disloyalty to the government; by Disney,

Among bills passed finally in the senate were: By Kerr, the county manager law, electing one member of the Board of County Commissioners, applying to counties having a population of 50,000 and more; House bill by Woodward, providing for publication of assessments before the State Board of Equalization; Senate bill by Vaughn, providing for a textbook commission; by Morton and others, providing pension for Confederate soldiers and sailors.

ADA

When it was proposed to unite the thirteen states into one nation under a federal constitution, the same sort of direful forebodings were heard that one hears now against the plan for a league of nations.

There is no use to expect either the legislature or congress to be ready with a clean slate when adjournment time comes around. In both cases there are too many would-be statesmen with an inordinate ambition to be seen and heard. They must have attention, no matter what goes with the state or nation.

Wilson's action in freeing a lot of agitators sent to prison during the war for their treasonable utterances may possibly have the desired effect in overcoming their unruly spirits with kindness, and it is to be hoped that it will, but the chances are that they will come forth more embittered and bolder than ever and resume their efforts for the overthrow of the American government. With the halo of a martyr about his head an agitator for bolshevism will be a greater menace than ever. This is certainly no time for preaching the doctrine of Lenin and Trotsky in America.

A bill passed by the legislature and signed by Governor Robertson last Saturday increases the salary of the county superintendents of the state to the same as that received by the county clerks, court clerks and treasurers which is $1,900 per year. This price should have been made when the salaries were first fixed as there is no reason why the superintendent should not receive as much pay as the rest of the county officers, as the responsibilities and work connected with the office is equal to that of the other offices. We congratulate County Superintendent Durham upon his raise in salary commencing with his next term, which will be July the first.—Holdenville Democrat.

The present rulers of Germany evidently do not hate the former kaiser very fiercely. His recent plea for financial aid brought forth a response to the tune of $130,000 cold cash.

After controlling the house for eight years and the senate for six the Democrats are again the minority party in congress. This is the longest period the party has controlled congress since the civil war and a time of much constructive legislation. With Wilson in the White House no partisan legislation will get by during the coming two years, although the Republicans will likely pass a high tariff bill as soon as one can be formulated. The tariff will be a national election. They will in all probability also make an issue of the league of nations and the whole question threshed out before the people.

President Wilson has rounded out his sixth year in the White House and has two more ahead of him. These have been strenuous years and his strength and brain have been taxed to the uttermost, but he has proved himself equal to the occasion. He has shown himself a remarkable leader and the Democratic party, in congress and out, has for the first time in many years shown a willingness to follow a leader and do something in the way of constructive legislation. Until now the president has had a Democratic congress in both branches behind him, but the remainder of his term will be with the Republicans in power and it is not to be presumed that he will have very easy sailing. The next congress will be thinking about making issues for the coming presidential campaign and Republican policies will often come into conflict with Wilson's Democratic principles.

The commission on reparation appointed by the peace conference to determine the amount of war damages due from Germany cannot be accused of being mealy mouthed. Without stuttering a bit the commission announces that the insignificant sum of $120,000,000,000 would be about the proper sum to exact. Before the war began the wealth of the German nation was estimated at $80,000,000,000 and that of Austria considerably less. Since the war a large part of the latter empire has been split up into smaller nations which will not be called on to bear a share of this debt. Hence, if what is left of Germany and Austria should be put up at auction the people would still owe several billions to pay for the cussedness of their rulers and fiendishness of Hun troops wherever they went. By all means make 'em pay to the limit. That will keep them too busy for many years to come to give them time to plan another attack on civilization. The Huns would have plundered the world had they been victorious and their mood can only be changed by the making them dig up to the last penny of their ability. That is the only way they can be brought to a realization of what war really means. They had been kept at war by promises of their leaders of the loot and indemnities that would be taken from the allies, and now the tables are turned and they are the ones who must pay the bill.

Running Sores Of Long Standing Cured By Number 40

James Robinson, 821 Rowley St., Evansville, Ind., makes the following statement: "I suffered for five years with running sores from blood poisoning of long standing. I doctored with the best physicians and tried a number of advertised remedies but received no permanent benefit. My brother-in-law, R. Tadlock, advised me to try 'Number 40 For the Blood.' After using the first bottle I was benefitted and was completely cured with five bottles and at this time, twelve months later, I have experienced no signs of the disease returning." Persons suffering with blood poisoning in any form should not delay but get "Number 40" at once. Sold by Gwin & Mays Drug Co.

BOOTLEGGER JOURNAL QUOTES BEARISH MARKET

LINCOLN, Neb., March 4.—The "Bootleg Daily Market Journal," an anonymous circular, has appeared at the state capitol where the legislature has been considering appropriations to enlarge the forces now trying to prevent importation of liquor into Nebraska from nearby states. A statement issued by the governor before the Journal appeared, said there was almost as much liquor in Nebraska as there was when the state went dry two years ago. He recommended a $25,000 appropriation as an addition to the state fund for combating liquor traffic. The request was granted.

"Bearish sentiment predominated today in the local booze market and resulted in aggressive selling at intervals," said the Journal. "St. Joseph options were plentifully offered and prices somewhat declined in the early period but recovered later; cash prices at the close were generally stronger than at the beginning of the session. This rally was due to the feeling that national prohibition will reduce the available supplies in the very near future. Muddy roads between St. Joseph and Omaha interfered materially with receipts but bootleggers look for lower prices as soon as the mud dries up."

CHAPTER VI.

But Mark refused Colonel Howard's invitation to become his guest, and avoided the house in Massachusetts circle as much as he could with decency. He was courageous enough to analyze his reasons and he did not conceal the result from himself.

He wanted Eleanor with all the pent-up longing of the denied years in the desert. His love was the strongest passion that he had ever felt, and yet, strangely for a man of his years, it had in it much more of the paternal element than of the lover. All his life he had been almost kinless, his only sister was dead, he wanted Eleanor's presence, Eleanor with him, to see her every day, whether as wife or daughter. Yet he was brave enough to acknowledge that this love, selfless in a measure, threatened to become a consuming passion if he did not hold himself rigidly in check.

He, the middle-aged captain, and Eleanor, with her station, her prospects and her beauty—it was an impossible dream, or one that would ruin the girl's life if, in some wild moment, she made it true.

He had his reward in Eleanor's increasing restraint, her quite visible indignation. They had fallen apart again, after that single meeting. It was a poor reward, but the sort that Mark had received all his life from fortune. But there were lonely nights when life seemed unbearable, and he had to exert all his will power to keep himself in check. Mark had rented a little furnished apartment in the Northwest section, off Pennsylvania avenue, and he had found the desert more companionable.

One night he felt at the end of his powers. That was after a grilling day in the war office, one of those days that sometimes come in Washington toward the middle of September, when everything is as sticky as the asphalt sidewalks.

It had been a day of evil portent besides. Colonel Howard, who had seemed of late to reflect Eleanor's coolness in some measure, had greeted him with a wry face when he came in. "The devil's to pay, Mark," he said. "Draw up your chair. There's a leak in the department."

"What?" cried Mark.
"Things are getting known—for instance, our dealings with the shipping people. They've found the exact number of ships we've requisitioned. You know whom I mean by 'they.'"
Mark nodded. The cosmopolitan influences in Washington, whose ramifications extended to the ends of the earth, or, at least, across the Atlantic, were busy in every drawing room extracting news, the tiniest and least reliable of which was not despised, since many such single items make up a coherent story.

"The Brigadier's wild about it," continued the Colonel, pulling at his mustache. "And it seems impossible to detect how the leakage occurred. It must have been through the shipping companies, of course; yet they couldn't have placed the thing together without concerted action, which is out of the question. Let's go through the papers."

They opened the safe and went through them one by one, but nothing was missing.

"Damn it!" growled Colonel Howard. "I've been through this before, Mark—you know that. In that case there was a traitor at work. We found him. In this case there can be none, at least, in the war department. And I've told the Brigadier I'll answer with my place for discovering where the leak lies."

He closed the safe and strode off into Kellerman's room, to return with Kellerman, looking angrier than before.

"What are we going to do, Kellerman?" he asked.

Kellerman pursed up his lips. "Well, Colonel, you know as much about it as any of us," he answered. "There's always been two of us present night and morning when the papers were transferred. I'll vouch for you, Wallace will, I presume, vouch for me, and you, I presume, will vouch for Wallace."

"You Know as Much About It As We Do."

The sinister look on his face affected Mark more disagreeably than ever. Mark felt nettled, though the words had been fair.

"If there's been a leak," he said "it seems to me it's up to the Brigadier to discover it. It's outside; it isn't our business to locate it. We're doing our part—what more can we do?"

"Come along and tell the Brigadier that," suggested Howard.
Mark, nothing loath, accompanied him to the General's room. But the Brigadier was more furious than Howard.

"I don't know how it happened, Colonel, and I don't care!" he cried, thumping the table. "No great harm has been done so far, and of course none of the departmental clerks can be suspected. But it's got to stop, and we've got to find out how it originated."

It was on that night that Mark felt at the end of his powers. It was early, he had dined and was sitting disconsolately in his apartment; nothing seemed of any value to him at that moment, and his thoughts were ranging round their eternal subject. Had it been necessary that he should have treated Mrs. Howard and Eleanor boorishly, to protect himself?

He put on his hat and went out, meaning to pay them a visit, or, at least, to walk toward their house while making his decision. He had not decided by the time he reached Massachusetts circle, and, as he stopped in doubt, he saw a man across the road, staring up at the house.

Of a sudden Eleanor's story recurred to his mind with vivid force. The man was obviously watching the house, and he meant to stay there.

But, as Mark started toward him, the man seemed to take fear, and shuffled away. Something in his gait brought back to Mark's mind the recollection of the man whom he had seen outside the Misses Harpers' school.

And he began to follow him. It was a role that he had never played before, but justified, in his mind, by the necessity of discovering the fellow's identity. Without any very clear intention in his mind how he was to accomplish this, Mark made his way after the solitary figure, keeping well behind it.

It soon became clear that the man, although he looked like a tramp, had a definite objective. Mark pursued him toward Pennsylvania avenue, until he discovered that he was nearing the least desirable part of Washington, whose location, so near the residence of the chief executive, has always been the wonder and scandal of visitors.

He was in one of those streets that start bravely in the city and debouch into the low-lying land in that intermediate and hardly reclaimed region bordering the Potomac. The houses here were old, many appearing vacant and tumble-down, and for the most part standing each in a little garden.

Mark was beginning to think of tackling the fugitive, who, unconscious of pursuit, was about fifty paces in front of him, when suddenly the man turned in at the tiny garden of an apparently deserted house and knocked at the door, which was opened almost immediately.

Mark heard a subdued scream, and then the man's voice in angry altercation.

He was talking to the woman who had opened the door. She looked about five and thirty years of age, and her face, distinctly visible against the light in the hall, was well-bred, if not attractive. She seemed one of those cosmopolitans who frequent the capital; Mark was still uncertain whether her house was one of those residences that are still occupied in this district by the original owners, or whether she was the mistress of one of those gambling establishments that flourish of necessity along the avenues of the earlier alphabet.

The man seemed to be pleading with her, his gestures were growing frantic. He looked about five and forty years of age; his face struck Mark with a certain odd familiarity, though he had never seen him closely before, and bore traces of breeding, blurred either by dissolute habits or by misfortune.

The woman answered him in tones of quick anger, and made a gesture of dismissal. The man held his ground doggedly, the voices became angrier. "No! No, I tell you!" the woman cried. "I don't know who you are! Will you go?"

Suddenly a man came along the passage behind her, carrying a walking-stick with a heavy handle. He raised it and brought it crashing down on the other's head.

The man fell to the ground, evidently half stunned by the blow. The man with the cane raised it and brought it down again and again upon the other's head and face, in a succession of sickening crashes.

Mark ran to the garden gate. The man with the stick paused, raised his head, and looked at him. Mark recognized Kellerman. As Kellerman, in turn, recognized him, an angry sneer spread over his face.

"My dear Wallace, what the dickens are you doing here?" he demanded.

"Are you trying to kill this man?" asked Mark.

Kellerman seemed nonplussed for the moment.

"I hope I've given him his lesson," he answered. "He came here and demanded money, and nearly frightened Mrs. Kenson out of her senses. Let me present you—"

Mark looked into the keen, appraising eyes of Mrs. Kenson with dislike and disgust.

"You'd better let him go, Major Kellerman," he said. As he spoke he saw Mrs. Kenson bite her lip vindictively. "Oh, I'll leave him to you," responded Kellerman airily. "You'll excuse me, Wallace, I'm sure, but Mrs. Kenson's auto will be here in a few moments."

Mark, hot with indignation, answered nothing, but raised the man from the ground and got him outside the gate. As he did so he heard the door of the house close softly.

The tramp was half unconscious, and muttering vaguely.

"Four years since I've seen her," he mumbled. "I didn't want money. Only the word. God knows I wouldn't have taken money from her as he said, the cur—"

"Was she your wife?" asked Mark, thinking that he saw light.

"God forbid!" ejaculated the man with convincing spontaneity. "Who are you, anyway?" he demanded, looking at him directly for the first time.

"What were you doing in that place?" He grasped Mark by the arm. "Are you another friend of hers?" he asked.

"Or didn't you know that it's the swiftest gambling house in Washington?" Mark took him by the shoulders.

"What's your name and where do you live?" he asked. "I haven't time to waste on you, but I'm ready to help you if I can."

"I'm Trusting You With My Things."

"My name? Hartley. Good enough name, isn't it? Live? I haven't lived for more years than I remember. I'm a corpse—see? I wanted to live. That's why I came here when I heard she was in Washington. Walked from New York. Why should she be here now, unless there's another poor young fool like me for her? Where the car

Mark drew the man's arm through his and led him away. Presently a cab came crawling up. He hailed it and gave his address.

He took him home and played the Good Samaritan, washed his wounds, plastered them, and gave the man a bed in his living room. Hartley had subsided into a state of frightened silence. He looked dubiously at Mark all the while he was receiving his ministrations, and would say nothing.

"Now, please understand," said Mark, "I've brought you here because you seem to me to be up against it. The door's unlocked. And I'm trusting you with my things. Those cups are silver, Hartley—I won them at West Point. That little picture is by Griffin and worth about seven hundred. That's about all, I think—but I want you to understand you're free, and I'll help you if I can."

Hartley flushed rather oddly. Mark thought, but said not a word. It was a foolish act, he thought repeatedly before he fell asleep; but he must win the man's confidence if he was to learn the mystery. And he was satisfied that his interest in Eleanor's movement hoded no harm to her.

In the morning, Hartley was gone, as he expected. But he had taken neither the cups nor the picture.

POWER, STRENGTH, ENERGY INCREASED AS IF BY MAGIC

Irogen, the New Discovery, Supplies Element Required by Nature to Make Rich, Red Blood.

The new discovery, Irogen, has been proven, after exhaustive experiments and tests, to be one of the most important made in modern times, inasmuch as its results are permanent and unlike the so-called tonics, which only temporarily stimulate. It is explained that Irogen supplies the necessary elements which nature requires in building new blood and that daily tests under the microscope conclusively show that new blood is actually generated, as indicated by the increased number of red blood corpuscles. It is also claimed that strength and vigor and the sensations of natural health are imparted to the weakened organs, nerves and muscles, and that this is unquestionably due to the enrichment and purification of the blood by Irogen.

Among the large public institutions that have used and publicly endorsed this new product is the People's Hospital of New York, one of the best known hospitals in the United States. Their letter follows:

"We have used 'IROGEN' in the convalescence of all acute medical and surgical cases, in debilitated nervous conditions, in muscular exhaustion, and particularly in anemias due to the stress and strain of industrial activities.

In all of the above conditions, "IROGEN" has done splendid work in improving the general condition of patients. The microscopic tests, before and after taking Irogen, show a rich improvement in the number of cells and in the richness of the coloring matter of the blood.

There is no doubt that "IROGEN" will meet a needed want with hospitals, physicians and the general public.

RALPH CRAVETTE,
Asst. Superintendent.

Among the numerous symptoms which may indicate weak blood and its need of Irogen, are: Lack of muscular strength, nervous weakness, irritability; pale, anemic skin, restlessness, loss of appetite, dyspepsia and indigestion, loss of weight, susceptibility to colds and catarrhs, habitually cold feet, exhaustion after moderate exercise or work, premature age, and various skin affections.

Note: Irogen, the product mentioned above, is now on sale in Ada by Gwin & Mays, in Allen by G. W. Busby, in Francis by the Francis Drug Company, in Stowall by L. P. Carpenter and in Vanoss by the Lyon Drug Company, and the leading druggist in practically every city, town and village in the state.

MASCOT OF FAMOUS 26TH INFANTRY DEAD

By the Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 4.—Salaman Lerma, 15 years old, the "Little Soldier Man" of the Twenty-Sixth Infantry, is dead. After three years' service he died of pneumonia in the trenches of France and was buried at Gondoucourt with military honors. His home town, San Benito, has been asked to place a gold star in its service flag.

"He was not an enlisted man, for one can't enlist at fifteen," wrote Samuel Robertson, Lieutenant Colonel of engineers in France, in telling of his death. "But he had been mascot of E. Company, Twenty-Sixth Infantry, from September, 1915, until death."

"No braver spirit ever served in the United States army. He has no relatives and most of his old company have been killed or wounded. In late November when I saw them there were only three men left who were in the company at San Benito."

Salaman, a homeless lad of twelve years, was adopted at San Benito by the Twenty-Sixth, then patrolling the Mexican border. Adventure awaited just over the threshold, and he met the test with a courage that brought instant distinction.

With Robertson, then a civilian, he was driving through a lonely stretch of country twelve miles from San Benito. A band of Mexicans suddenly appeared from a patch of brush and surrounded the automobile. In an instant firing became general and a rain of bullets clattered against the car, which continued plunging forward, with Robertson and the lad returning the fire. Robertson's hat was shot from his head. The boy escaped unhurt.

When the regiment proceeded to France, Salaman went along as mascot and was in the trenches for several months.

GHOST STORIES FROM BRITISH SAILORS

By the Associated Press

LONDON, March 4.—The British sailor apparently is as superstitious as ever and two stories of the navy have found their way into the columns of the Daily Mail.

According to one of these tales an officer of a naval vessel became mentally unbalanced in the war and committed suicide under tragic circumstances after escaping from his cabin. Not long afterward the sentries on board began to complain that some one was dogging their footsteps as they paced up and down in the night watches. They declared that they could feel a presence, but on turning around could see no one. Eventually the sentries had to be sent on duty in pairs, as a solitary sentry sometimes would desert his post in terror. The "ghost" is probably laid, as its ship was sunk in the Dardanelles.

Another case was that of a haunted cabin. The officer assigned to it was missing and it was presumed that he was washed overboard by accident. Another officer was allotted the cabin, and one night he awoke to the ship by shouts. A number of officers and men rushed in and found the new occupant sitting up in his bunk in a state of terror. He said he had felt something touch his head and that the bunk was invaded by something damp and smelling of seaweed.

The same thing happened to another tenant later on, and after that the cabin was unused for three months. Then a chaplain moved into the cabin and there were no complaints of further manifestations.

YES, INFLUENZA CAN BE CURED AND PREVENTED.

It remained for an Oklahoma physician, Dr. Doan, to prepare a medicine which has been found to be a cure for influenza and all colds.

"In-Hale-It" is the name of this wonderful medicine, the odor or vapor of which is inhaled deep into the lungs. Of the hundreds of severe cases treated in Northeastern Oklahoma, with "In-Hale-It" not a case was lost. Many of these cases had reached a stage where blood was being coughed from the lungs.

"In-Hale-It" has been in use for thirty years and has been a wonderful remedy for pneumonia and severe colds. With the coming of the first epidemic of influenza Dr. Doan immediately prescribed "In-Hale-It" with wonderful results. "In-Hale-It" is absolutely guaranteed or money refunded. Does not interfere with physicians' prescriptions. It is harmless if spilled in mouth. Get a bottle and ward off influenza. Treat bad colds with it. "In-Hale-It" has saved many lives. Costs 50c the bottle at all druggists. By mail 60c. Prepared by Doan's Pharmacy, Miami Oklahoma. Sold in Ada by Gwin & Mays Drug Co., and M. A. Waits.

AMERICAN ARMY LOST THIRTY-TWO BALLOONS

By the Associated Press

COBLENZ, March 4.—Thirty-two American observation balloons were destroyed in the war, most of them by German aviators. One fatality resulted the balloonist's parachute catching fire from sparks from the burning balloon. Each balloon cost $8,000, and the expense for inflation about $350 for gas.

Anti-aircraft guns used to protect observation balloons accounted for four German aviators, in each case the enemy flying machine being brought down after the aviator had set fire to the American balloon by incendiary bullets.

LAST CHANCE FOR DRAFT DESERTERS

By the Associated Press

CAMP TRAVIS, Tex., March 4.—Draft deserters must voluntarily surrender themselves to the nearest military authorities at once in order to avoid the humiliation of arrest. By order of the Secretary of War, General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, has issued a circular setting forth the policy of the war department to settle definitely the status of draft deserters.

The order of the president of November 11, 1918, directing suspension of mobilization and induction under the Selective Service Law, says the circular, provided specifically that it did not operate to relieve from the consequence of his acts any registrant who had become delinquent or a deserter.

All department commanders, camp commanders and other authorities competent to receive deserters, are instructed that they shall accept all draft deserters who may be delivered to them in accordance with regulations.

In each case the authorities will make careful investigation, and where it is shown the man is not a willful deserter the charge of desertion will be set aside. But the charge of desertion will not be set aside unless such investigation by competent authority has been made and proper written recommendation is made to the officer having general court martial jurisdiction. All other draft deserters will be tried by general court martial. If proven guilty their separation from the army shall not appear as honorable. If physical examination shows such men physically unfit for service they may be discharged without trial as provided in army regulations.

The military authorities are preparing lists for publication of all men considered as draft deserters. Until the lists are published the usual efforts toward apprehending and punishing draft deserters will be made. When these lists are published all draft deserters appearing there on will be considered as any other deserters and action will be taken as prescribed in army regulations.

The lists of deserters will serve not only to inform the police officials but to inform the deserter himself and his friends and acquaintances that a charge of desertion stands against him.

Pending further instructions all inquiries for information as to draft deserters will be referred to the adjutant general of the state concerned.

Commanding officers are allowed to use their own discretion as to whether draft deserters who voluntarily surrender shall be confined or merely retained with in the limits of military jurisdiction pending the determination of their status.

OXFORD UNIVERSITY RENEWS ACTIVITIES

By the Associated Press

OXFORD, Eng., Feb. 1.—Oxford University is once again alive after four years of quietude. Twelve hundred undergraduates are in residence, many still in khaki, some on crutches, others lacking a limb. Rhodes scholars are expected to arrive in record numbers very soon. Problems face the authorities however. Overcrowding is feared, changes of education are demanded, and already a large proportion of the students want to take up chemistry and science while a still larger portion are studying history, instead of classics. The authorities are said to be perturbed at the upheaval facing them.

Outwardly the colleges show little change from pre-war days. The trenches and other signs of war training have disappeared and scouts, porters and the old permanent staff are around ready to do the bidding of the students and dons.

MILD WINTER AFFECTS WILD GAME IN CANADA

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., March 4.—Reports that the remarkably mild winter had a serious effect upon big game in the wilds north of here were investigated and veteran trappers confirmed rumors of an influenza epidemic among the moose. They now report that bears are about three months behind in their sleep.

When the first cold weather came the bears hibernated as usual. The January thaw arrived and butterflies appeared. Then most of the bears woke up. Since then they haven't been able to sleep, trappers declare. It takes a week of sustained cold to convince a bear that it is about time for him to "go below." There has not been a week of such weather since December.

Daily Health Talks URIC ACID IN THE SYSTEM

BY LEE H. SMITH, M. D.

Uric acid is now generally recognized as the cause of more diseases than was heretofore believed. When the kidneys are out of order uric acid accumulates within the body in super abundance. The disordered kidneys do not filter the poisons out of the blood, as they ought to do, and so the poisons remain in the blood and float around until they find a place to lodge, in form of urate salts. The thing to remember is that you may have rheumatism in any part of the body—you may have pains anywhere—your back may ache and your head may be dizzy—but the trouble is not where the pain appears. The trouble is in the kidneys, and what is the first thing to do? You must get that excess uric acid out of your system, which can be done by taking Anuric Tablets, the splendid remedy which Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has put on sale in the drug stores at a low price. Anuric Tablets (made double strength), when taken into the system as medicine, have the peculiar power of dissolving the uric acid deposited there. Drop a bit of sugar or salt into hot water, and it will disappear. In precisely the same way do these Anuric Tablets dissolve uric acid. Of course, after ridding the system of uric acid, it may return again unless you eat the right foods and live the right kind of life, but Dr. Pierce will advise you fully on proper food and correct living if you write and ask him. He makes no charge for such advice. Take Anuric Tablets to-day, by all means, and get that uric acid out of your system. Don't, don't, don't, put the matter off.

FRENCH WOMEN CHANGE STYLES IN HEADGEAR

By the Associated Press

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Peasant girls of France are more than ever abandoning the close fitting native headgear, to wear which they had to have their tresses cut. In rural France there is a widespread movement for the adoption of the "towny" style, which, if less picturesque, makes for the preservation of woman's chief glory.

This fact, coupled with the total disappearance from the market of Chinese hair, from which the cheaper grades of "switches" and "tails" used to be made, renders false hair extremely expensive in France. "There are no more so-called hair fairs held in France nowadays," says a prominent hair specialist, "and natural blond plaits are worth at least $20 an ounce."

ATLANTA BUSINESS MAN IS ENTHUSED

SINCE TAKING TANLAC ALMAND
SAYS HE FEELS AS WELL AS HE EVER DID.

"If you had seen me before I began taking Tanlac you would hardly believe me to be the same person," said A. F. Almand, a well-known seed merchant of 271-3 Peters street, Atlanta, Ga.

"For more than a year," he continued, "I suffered terribly with stomach trouble. After eating anything I would always have gas on my stomach and would constantly belch up my sour, undigested food. I suffered with heartburn constantly and was extremely nervous, my liver was sluggish and I was bilious, too. I felt languid and tired most of the time and often felt so bad that I could hardly attend to my business properly."

"I heard so many people praising Tanlac that I began taking it, too, and by the time I had finished my second bottle I had gained nineteen pounds. I never suffer now with heartburn or indigestion and am not nervous like I was before. I sleep well and get up in the morning feeling fine and ready for a hard day's work."

BULGARIA IN BAD WAY FINANCIALLY

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 9.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Bulgaria is facing a financial crisis, it is asserted. The war cost the country over $1,500,000,000 while its estimated wealth is only $2,200,000,000. The national debt before the war was $60,000,000.

Of the national debt as it now stands Bulgaria owes to Germany $660,000,000 which was advanced in installments of ten millions, but last winter Germany discontinued this practice and demanded payment for munitions in cash. Germany, evidently was not in the business of helping its Allies for nothing, as the prices charged Bulgaria for gas mask clearly indicate. For each mask it charged $16 and a sheepskin, as compared with the cost of a similar article for the United States army in England of $4.50.

Financial experts agree that the solvency of the country can only be preserved by the presentation of counter claims against Germany. Even if Bulgaria's total indebtedness to Germany is outweighed by Bulgaria's counter claims, oppressive taxes must be imposed for a decade or two in order to meet the remaining debt, say Bulgarians. The state revenues before the last three wars averaged $50,000,000 per annum. Recent taxation added $20,000,000 to this sum. To fill the gap between what is possible to raise by taxation and the needs of the nation it is now proposed to confiscate wealth illegally obtained in addition to drastic taxation of war profits.

Under Germany's tutelage the financial policy maintained by Bulgaria sunk the country deeper and deeper every year in debt. It was the only belligerent country which issued no internal loan, but contented itself with printing paper money to the total of almost $500,000,000 at the normal rate of exchange. As a result Bulgaria's currency has depreciated more than one-half, while the accumulation of private wealth ran parallel to the rapidly mounting state debt. More than eighty banks were floated having a total capitalization of nearly one hundred millions.

Bulgaria's sole negotiable article of export is tobacco, and this she must use in the world's markets in exchange for food, clothing, cotton, oils, medicine, etc. At present there are in the country the crops of the past two years, valued at about $300,000,630.

HARRY CAREY TAMES WOMAN MUCH AS HE DOES HORSES

Dowager Gets Worst of It in Bib Universal Special Attraction, "Roped."

Harry Carey, starring in "Roped," his latest Universal photodrama of fast action, started his career on a western range and in the course of his work was frequently called upon to smooth out rough horses.

In "Roped" he uses much the same tactics in dealing with one Mrs. Judson-Brown, a New York dowager who was content to let her daughter marry the millionaire cattleman for his money but decided to wreck his home for a lounge-lizard with greater social possibilities.

Harry Carey, as Cheyenne Harry, comes to the American theatre in "Roped" today. With him is Neva Gerber, who has supported him in most of his successes in the last year.

If you like the work of the famous Harry Carey squadron of hard riding cowboys and want to see them try to take care of a baby, be sure and go to the American theatre for they'll be there—and in "soup and fish," too.

Just imagine that outfit in evening clothes.

It is to laugh.

Methodist Advance Notice.

Next Sunday the pastor of the First Methodist church has announced that his morning subject will be "Stewardship," and the evening theme will be "The Light of the World." He has spoken several times on this subject announced for morning, but hopes to be able to deal with the matter interestingly. His evening sermon will be evangelistic, and he is desirous of seeing people accept Christ at this service, as at all services.—Wallace M. Crutchfield, Pastor.

Regal Stay Smooth Scarfs*What Are The New Spring Ties Like?

Is a question that drives our ad-man to distraction because they can only be described by the fine, tender touches of a love story writer.

Soft effects? Yes, and some very plain, severe ones, too—some tie up the size of a movie actor's pay check while others wrap a slender knot that fits into the subway of a narrow fold collar without crowding.

We've got the neckwear, all right, but can't commence to essay its beauty or variety any more than you could hope to write an absolute correct account of how you felt when the whistles blew on November 11th.

NORMAL BOYS LOSE GAME TO OKMULGEE

The Normal Boys' basketball team returned from Okmulgee where they played a game with the high school of that place Monday evening. The Okmulgee boys won by the narrow margin of 23 to 28. The Ada boys had no complaint to register, saying their opponents played clean and fair and treated them well.

Wonderful Miniature Motor.

A miniature electric motor is described as weighing only 150 grains, and as being inclosed in a shell about an inch and a half long and an inch and a quarter in diameter. The shaft is designed especially for holding tools of dentists or surgeons, but it may be used for fine drills for metals or gems, or for other similar purposes. The motor is driven at a maximum rate of about 5,000 revolutions per minute, and is adapted for use with either direct or alternating current.

Look for the Large Chance.

The opportunity that is bigger than you are cannot help you, no matter how close it comes. To be worth anything, a chance must fit. Instead of simply waiting for your opportunity, grow up to it. Big people do not need to put up with small openings, and little people find it impossible to fill big ones. If you are growing all the time, and fitting yourself for the larger chances, you need not worry for fear they will fail to present themselves.

A Healdton physician tells this story on himself. After writing a prescription for a patient the physician told him that the druggist would probably charge him 60 cents for filling it. Then the patient asked the physician to lend him the 60 cents. Thereupon the physician carefully scratched out a part of the prescription and handed it back with 10 cents, remarking "you can get that filled for a dime. What I scratched out was for your nerves, but you need nothing for them."—Healdton Herald.

THIS TELLS HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX

Squarely Up to Every Individual to Get Busy by March 15 or Suffer Penalty.

"Don't wait until the final due date, March 15, for paying your income tax and making your return. Avoid the last minute rush. Any person can figure out his liability today as well as he can next week, and if there is any point on which he needs advice he can now get in touch with a Revenue man."

This word of advice is from Hubert L. Bolen, Collector of Internal Revenue, Oklahoma City, who is collecting the income tax in Oklahoma. Collector Bolen is giving without charge every aid of his office and his enlarged field force to help the people get their payments and their returns in by March 15th.

But the income tax men will not pull your door-bell or your coat-tails, according to the collector's announcement. It is squarely up to every individual to figure out his own case and to get busy if he comes within the scope of the new revenue law.

Did You Earn This Much?

Every unmarried person who received income averaging $10.25 a week during 1918 and every married couple who jointly received income averaging $38.50 a week should secure at once from the nearest Deputy Collector or the nearest bank a blank Form 1040 A. That form contains the information he will need to enable him to figure his correct net income and any tax that he owes the Government.

The law requires that every unmarried person who had a net income of $1,000 or over and every married person whose net income was $2,000 or over (including the income of husband or wife and the earnings of minor children, if any) must make a return on or before March 15. And this requirement does not hinge on whether the person owes a tax.

Taxable Income.

An individual must include under gross income all gains, profits and income derived from salaries, wages or compensation for personal service of whatever kind and in whatever form paid or from professions, vocations, business, sales or dealings in property of all kinds, interest, rent, dividends or profits derived from any source whatever. Very few items of income are exempt.

Deductions include ordinary and necessary business expenses, interest paid or accrued on indebtedness, taxes of all kinds except Federal income and excess profits taxes and assessments for local benefits, losses actually sustained, debts ascertained to be worthless and depreciation on buildings, machinery, fixtures, etc., used in business. A further deduction is allowed for contributions to corporations operated for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals to an amount not exceeding 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income as computed without the benefit of the contribution deduction.

The taxpayer is not allowed to deduct any personal, living or family expense, any amount spent for improving property or making good its exhaustion for which an allowance is claimed under depreciation.

Figuring the Tax.

Before figuring the normal tax the dividends are deducted as credits from net income, together with the personal exemption. As in previous years, dividends of domestic corporations are exempt from normal tax when received by the stockholder.

The normal tax rates for citizens and residents are as follows: On the first $4,000 of net income in excess of the credits the rate is 6 per cent; on any further taxable income the rate is 12 per cent.

The surtax rates apply to net income of each individual in excess of $5,000. The personal exemption and the dividends are not deductible before computing surtax. In the case of returns by husband and wife, the net income of each is considered separately in computing any surtax that may be due. Form 1040 should be used for making returns of net income exceeding $5,000, and the instructions on that form will show how to figure the surtax.

Business House Returns.

Employers and others who paid wages, salaries, rents, interest or similar determinable gains in an amount of $1,000 or over during 1918 to any person must file an information return with the Government. Blanks may be secured from the Collector.

Every partnership must file a return showing its income and deductions and the name and address of each partner, with his share of the profits or losses during the past year. Personal service corporations will file similar information for 1918.

RED CROSS NOTES.

Work is progressing nicely at headquarters now. The ladies are determined to get the order of sewing out at once.

The Chapter is in receipt of a communication from Mr. George W. Simmons, manager of the Southwestern division in which he says the Red Cross work in Siberia is magnificent. He sends regards to Pontotoc county chapter.

We are also in receipt of a letter from one Mr. R. F. Robertson, of the American Expeditionary Forces in which he says one of our beautiful gray sweaters has been issued him and he wants to express his appreciation for the work.

I'm sure the ladies feel well repaid for the Red Cross work they have done when they talk to the returned soldiers, especially the boys from over seas, for it really seems they could not have lived without the Red Cross.

We still have a few vacant machines.

The Ada normal team won third place out of six contesting normal and secondary agricultural schools in stock judging at the Southwest American Live Stock show at Oklahoma City. Curtis Floyd won first honors over all competitors, making a score of 535 against 500 for his nearest rival. This gave him a cash prize of $20 for all round judging and a silver cup for the Duroc Jersey hog section.

Other members of the team were Otis Floyd, Claude Carter, son of W. M. Carter of Oakman, and Gordon Reed, son of H. F. Reed, Stonewall. Prof. B. A. Pratt, head of the department of agriculture at the East Central normal, was the coach of this team.

The Alva normal team won first place and the A. & M. second.

The contest was for the purpose of giving the club boys an opportunity of practical experience in judging livestock. Curtis Floyd has already made a record in this line and how well he has developed his judgment is shown by the score made this time. The other club members on the team from Pontotoc county are also learning rapidly.

Interest in the club work has increased steadily since it was started by the first demonstration agent and under J. B. Hill, the present agent, has made a rapid advance.

I. McNair is in receipt of word to the effect that W. R. Morrison, formerly ticket agent at the Frisco station, had lost both legs in battle. Mr. Morrison was among the first to leave for the front when war was declared.

FAVORABLE REPORT ON NORMAL BUILDING

A wire from Representative W. H. Ebey to Secretary O. N. Walker this afternoon stated that the House committee has reported favorably the bill appropriating $100,000 for an additional building for the East Central normal which is badly needed.
